Lengyel takes charge of police department

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Jim Lengyel will be the Granite City police chief June 1, replacing Chief Bob Astorian, who is retiring to become the director of Madison County Probation and Court Services.

Mayor Von Dee Cruse appointed Lengyel, currently the assistant chief, at Tuesday's City Council meeting. Ron Selph was appointed to serve as assistant chief.

Both appointments were unanimously accepted by the aldermen.

Lengyel, 40, has been with the department 17 years. He has worked in all sections and served as captain in charge of the patrol and detective divisions.

He has an associate degree in law enforcement from Belleville Area College and a BA in criminal justice from McKendree College, Lebanon. Lengyel was appointed assistant chief when Astorian took over as chief in July 1987.

"I plan to continue straightening out the department," Lengyel said. "There are still some problems, some undesirable individuals who need removed. Bob has been doing a heck of a job. There are not a lot of changes that need to be made."

Selph is in his 18th year with the department and was promoted to captain in January. He holds an associate degree from BAC and a BA from McKendree.

He has taught law enforcement classes at BAC and was the training officer for the Granite City Police for eight years.

Selph has served on the Coordinated Youth Services board and the Community Advisory Committee and served six years as treasurer of the Granite City Employees Federal Credit Union.

Loftus leaving district

By Paul Guggina
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Prather Elementary School Principal Michael Loftus is resigning to take a job in the Triad School District.

Loftus, Prather's principal for two years, said he has accepted a job as principal of Marine Grade School in Troy. The school is for kindergarten through eighth-grade pupils.

"It's a new opportunity for me to work with junior high school kids," Loftus said Wednesday.

Loftus was a teacher in District 9 from 1974 to 1979. Before returning to the district as principal in 1986, he taught in O'Fallon and Clayton, Mo., and worked at an educational supply company.

At Prather, Loftus helped coordinate the return to school of Jason Robertson, a pupil with AIDS-related complex.

German youth can't graduate in Granite City

GRANITE CITY — Sven Peperkorn's friends will graduate without him tomorrow.

Peperkorn, an exchange student from Frankfurt, West Germany, has been a student at Granite City High School since August. He attended classes with seniors, he played on the varsity tennis team and went to the senior prom.

But district policy will prevent Peperkorn from getting a diploma, or even attending the graduation ceremony with his peers.

"It is the school policy," Peperkorn said Tuesday. "But I think the policy needs to be changed."

The 17-year-old said that, though he hadn't expected to get a diploma, he had planned on participating in the ceremony to be recognized as an exchange student. He even ordered a cap and gown.

But high school principal Ken Spalding said foreign exchange students do not participate in the ceremony.

"The district has a long-standing policy that foreign exchange students do not participate in graduation," Spalding said. "The people that walk across our stage and receive a diploma are those who have earned one here."

Peperkorn has not completed school in Germany, and will continue to attend classes when he returns home later this summer.

Peperkorn was given a participation certificate at the senior awards banquet. But he would rather have received the certificate at the graduation ceremony, so his parents, who are expected to arrive in Granite City tonight, would be able to see him honored with his classmates.

"It would be a nice even if you don't get a diploma," Peperkorn said. "You participate in all the senior classes, you go to prom and all that stuff, I think you should go to the ceremony, too."

Despite everything, Peperkorn said he has no hard feelings toward the district. "I'm disappointed, but I understand," he said. "I can't be mad at anybody."

'Weekend in the Park' to be held next weekend

By Valerie Evenden

GRANITE CITY — Polka, rock, country, bluegrass and big band sounds will compete for attention with the thwack of softball bats, the clink of horseshoes and splashing from dunking booths at "Weekend in the Park," festival on Friday night, Saturday and Sunday, June 3-5, at Wilson Park.

The Granite City Ambassadors promise "something for everyone" at their "Weekend in the Park," which climaxes the Granitefest '88 celebration.

All Quad City residents are invited, said Dave McFarland, who is coordinating the extensive festival for the Ambassadors with Alan Ortbals.

Granitefest

Among the weekend's star attractions are a celebrity softball game, starting at noon Saturday, June 4, pitting members of the Granite City Sports Hall of Fame, organized by Dick Portell, against Channel 5 sports anchor Mike Bush and his Bush-leaguers team, and a hot air balloon launch, weather permitting, on Sunday, June 5.

Men and women's softball teams from Granite City, Venice, Madison, Ponton Beach and Mitchell areas still may sign up for a double elimination softball tournament, scheduled Saturday and Sunday, June 4 and 5. The tournament is being organized by Ray Hoffman of the Umpires Association.

Teams wishing to register may call Ortbals at 452-6215 or the Granitefest office at 798-3352, for a message for a return call, if necessary.

Forty to 50 tables of arts and crafts are expected at a two-day craft show in the Wilson Park Ice Rink, June 4 and 5. Some table spaces remain and persons wishing a table may call Cathy Burdge at 461-4200 or 877-0314.

Four special shows incorporated into the weekend program will feature cars, boats, motorcycles and antique, classic and custom cars.

On Saturday, June 4, Novotny Chevrolet, Woodruff Oldsmobile, Koetting Ford and Johnston Chrysler-Dodge will display new cars; Nameoki Boat and Motor, boats; and Granite City Honda.

City cusses, discusses case of Patrolman Diak

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Suspended Patrolman George Diak Jr., without pay since April 14, will remain unpaid at least until his hearing in Madison County Circuit Court on June 7.

Diak's case is more complicated than the allegation that he allegedly took a joy ride to Jersey County while on duty.

Being debated is who has his responsibility for determining when, if and what action should be taken against Diak's for the alleged violation: the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners claims sole responsibility. Police Chief Bob Astorian agrees, Mayor Von Dee Cruse and the city attorneys say the board's responsibility is less absolute, and the court is somewhere in the middle.

The Board of Fire and Police Commissioners said it neither authorized nor approved of settlement negotiations before or after the May 9 hearing.

Assistant City Attorney John Hopkins entered negotiations with Greg Becker, Diak's attorney prior to May 9. Hopkins had Cruse's approval to do so, but not the board's because, Hopkins said, "the commissioners are judges in this case. Negotiations are between (See DIAK, Page 12A)

Elementary summer school canceled despite objection

By Paul Guggina
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — There will be no summer school for elementary school children this year.

Despite strong objections by board member Paul Bowler, the Board of Education on Monday canceled the program, which it had unanimously approved the week ago.

Superintendent Gib Walmesley recommended the cancellation. He said district principals "overwhelmingly" felt the program was a waste of money.

"They were emphatic that this wasn't doing anything," he said.

The district has offered an elementary summer school program for the past two years. Prior to that, the program was not offered on a regular basis.

Bowler said canceling the program would solve nothing. He said if the program was not effective, the principals "should take a look at themselves."

"I just think it's absurd to not have for the children who need it some kind of learning platform," Bowler said.

The program would have cost about $14,000, which the district may have been able to obtain from a state grant, Walmesley said.

But Walmesley said such a

Grade school superintendent to head BAC

By Rick Arnold
Staff affiliate

BELLEVILLE — Disregarding the recommendation of its steering committee, the Belleville Area College Board of Trustees named a grade school superintendent as BAC's president on Tuesday.

The board's unanimous choice was Belleville Grade School District 118 Superintendent Dr. Joseph Cipfl.

Cipfl will receive a two-year contract at an annual salary of $73,000, said Deane Wiley, chairman of the president recruitment and screening committee.

Leo Welch, BAC Faculty Senate president and a member of the recruitment committee, said the committee did not receive recommended Cipfl. The committee recommended candidates Wes Channell, vice president of Western Tech Community College in Scotts Bluff, Neb., and James Meznek, deputy chancellor of the California Community College system.

The board interviewed Cipfl and the two recommended candidates during the weekend of May 22.

Welch said the board "was repeating history" because, in 1980, it also rejected the recruitment committee's choice; it named former Chancellor Bruce Wissore as president. Welch said he had "no comment on whether the faculty would welcome Cipfl."

Wiley said the board retained its right to interview applicants.

Trustee Ted Farmer's motion to continue the presidential search for another six months failed. Farmer said he preferred an experienced candidate to head BAC.

However, after Cipfl was selected, Farmer said Cipfl "was head and shoulders above the other two candidates," that Cipfl "certainly had his support" and that Cipfl could overcome any criticism of his selection.

Trustee Kay Bennett, principal of St. Augustine's Grade School in Belleville, said it would not be a major problem for Cipfl to make the transition from grade school superintendent to community college president.

Cipfl will probably begin work July 1 when the contract of interim Chancellor B.J. Davis expires, Wiley said. The board chose Davis, an Edwardsville resident, in December after firing Wissore on Dec. 12. Davis was a former Granite City School District 9 superintendent.

Cipfl said it will be a benefit that he has lived in southwestern Illinois all of his life. Cipfl has been with District 118 since 1969 and has been superintendent since 1976.

"I do believe that this will provide me an immediate opportunity to start dialogues with various groups of people," he said. "I plan on talking with every person involved with the college."

Cipfl said he expects some criticism. "I'm sure there may be some folks who have some doubts and that's great," he said. "Some people don't know me and I don't know them."

Cipfl said his priority will be to reverse the college's declining enrollment by marketing the college, particularly to high school students. Other groups that need to be targeted are women returning to the work force and people who need to be retrained for different jobs, Cipfl said.

Prior to being in the public eye as a contender for the BAC job, Cipfl was in the news during the controversy regarding a 7-year-old AIDS victim who wanted to attend Jefferson School, 1400 N. Charles St., Belleville.

Cipfl had then said that because the boy's immune system was affected by AIDS, the boy would be at risk of severe effects if he caught any of the normal childhood diseases other school children might give him.

After facing defeat in federal court, the District 118 Board of Education decided in early December to allow the boy to attend school.

BAC consists of three campuses, at Red Bud, Granite City and Belleville.

Memorial Day gas prices are higher

Motorists will be paying 4 to 5 cents more for gasoline this Memorial Day weekend compared with 1987, according to an AAA-Auto Club of Missouri survey.

The club's May survey of 34 service stations along major travel routes throughout Missouri, Illinois and Kansas found the following 1988 average prices, followed by 1987 Memorial Day prices: regular full-service, $1.03 (98); regular unleaded, $1.07 (98); regular self-service, 97 (87); and unleaded self-service, 89 (85).

The club said the survey found that nearly one-third of the service stations surveyed plan to be open 24 hours a day during the holiday period.

Man charged in sexual assault of local girl, 8

GRANITE CITY — A man who allegedly sexually assaulted an 8-year-old girl while she was being "babysat" at his home earlier this month was arrested May 20.

Perry C. Luffman, 26, 2115 S. Benton St., was arrested at 21st and Adams streets on a felony warrant charging him with aggravated criminal sexual assault.

Police were called to investigate at 3:07 a.m. May 20 by the girl's mother after the babysitter reported the girl had complained of bleeding from her vaginal area. The girl was taken to the St. Elizabeth Medical Center Emergency Room.

There the girl told police "Perry" had caused the injury.

The girl's 5-year-old sister and 2-year-old brother were in the room at the time of the alleged sexual assault, but were reported to have been asleep and unharmed.

The warrant set bail at $7,500 cash.

Village wants water service to reach I-255

PONTIAC BEACH — Alleged lack of cooperation from Illinois-American Water Co. may result in the village having 1,600 feet of water pipe installed by Nameki Township — with water purchased for the new line from another source — village officials are asserting.

But the water company said Friday it is cooperating and that it wants to help arrange for the line to be installed.

The village has been trying to reach agreement with Illinois-American for more than 15 months. Village Attorney Keith Jensen said. The village wants an additional 1,600 feet of line along Illinois 162, extending water service to both sides of the new Interstate 255 interchange.

At the village board's May 10 meeting, officials said the water company about 15 months ago quoted a price of $18,000 to install a 12-inch line. More recently, Illinois-American said an eight-inch line for the same distance would cost $28,900 to install, it was related.

Robert Jackson, an Illinois-

American official, recalled Friday the cost of the initial water line proposal was $36,000, with the village and his company splitting the amount. No funds for the project were allocated by the utility firm the following year, he said.

"We are interested in getting water out there and we will be glad to sit down with the village officials and talk this over," he said.

Illinois-American is "very interested" in any project which helps economic development and Jackson expects to become more involved in this aspect in the future, Jackson said.

Diak's day in court delayed until June 7

EDWARDSVILLE — Patrolman George Diak Jr. will not face a hearing before the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners before June 7; a preliminary injunction to that effect was granted Thursday to Greg Becker, Diak's attorney.

The ruling was handed down by Chief Associate Judge Edward C. Ferguson in Madison County Circuit Court.

On the same day, Becker filed for an enforcement order requiring Granite City to honor a settlement allegedly reached with Assistant City Attorney John Hopkins on May 5.

The reported settlement called for Diak to receive a 90-day unpaid suspension and required him to undergo psychiatric evaluation.

Mayor Von Dee Cruse and Police Chief Robert Astorian have said no one was authorized to finalize such a settlement on behalf of the city government.

Diak was suspended without pay April 14 for an alleged unauthorized trip to Jersey County. His suspension came pending a hearing before the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners on May 9.

Wayward patrol car takes off, strikes fence at park

GRANITE CITY — There wasn't a policeman behind the wheel when a Granite City patrol car traveled, in gear, about 60 yards and struck a fence Saturday evening.

Police Chief Bob Astorian said officers had conducted "six or seven interviews" Sunday and "one witness said she saw the car going with no one behind the wheel. That's all we really have right now."

Police were responding to a complaint of a large group of "partying teen-agers" at 2000 Pontoon Road.

"They pulled up and jumped out of the cars. There were kids running everywhere — you know the kind of scene I'm talking about," Astorian said.

The damage to the patrol car was minor, $50-100, Astorian said. He said he did not have an estimate on the fence yet.

"There are a lot of could-bes," Astorian said. "It could be someone drove it, it could be someone slipped it in drive, it could be several other things. No one we've talked to saw anyone get in the car and the one witness who saw it going said she didn't see anyone in it."

Hagnauer wants decision on forming health agency

EDWARDSVILLE — Madison County Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer, D-Granite City, said May 18 he wants a decision on whether to establish a county health department at the board's next meeting June 15.

As on several previous occasions, the board postponed a vote on the issue. Board member Robert Stille, D-Edwardsville, asked for the delay on behalf of the board's health institutions committee. He is committee chairman.

"We feel there is not enough information to recommend for or against," Stille said.

The committee was expected to recommend an advisory referendum on a health department, but committee members learned last week that Illinois law makes no provision for such a referendum.

Committee members are split over the proposal. A county health department can be created by resolution of the board, or citizens may petition for a vote on a tax levy to support a health department.

If created by resolution, a health department would assume the tax levy, employees, assets and liabilities of the county's tuberculosis sanitarium and board.

Board member Richard Worthen, D-Alton, tried to introduce a resolution to establish a health department, but it was ruled that the vote to postpone action also postponed his resolution.

Worthen's resolution would have authorized a maximum 2.5-cent tax rate on each $100 of assessed valuation to help finance a health department.

"We have messed around with this long enough," said Worthen. "Anyone who says they don't have enough information is saying they haven't taken the time to look at it."

But committee member Lou Akers, D-Alton, said there is support for a health department on the committee, and the committee is not "messaging around."

During a committee meeting which preceded the board meeting, Akers and committee member Vergil Fletcher, D-Collinsville, said they would vote for a health department if it came before the board that day.

The proposed department could provide services in the area of communicable and chronic diseases, sewage disposal, solid waste, drinking water, maternal health, child health and family planning.

Power petitions

STATE REP. SAM WOLF (left), D-Granite City, delivers petitions containing more than 10,000 signatures to Terry Scrogum, legislative director of the Illinois Commerce Commission. The petitions were collected by local residents to protest Illinois Power's request for an electricity rate increase.

Madison County Board delays hotel tax

EDWARDSVILLE — Actions taken by the Madison County Board on May 18 included the following:

•Delayed the effective date of a tax on hotel and motel rooms in the county from May 1 to June 1. Officials said the May 1 start did not allow enough time to implement the tax fairly and efficiently.

•Adopted a resolution opposing Illinois Power Company's request for rate increases to pay for the company's new nuclear power plant at Clinton. The matter is before the Illinois Commerce Commission.

•Approved a petition that Jarvis Township be allowed to annex to the Madison County Transit District.

•There's no way to get around this, my friends," Bowles told the board. "We don't want anyone to think we're trying to keep anyone from voting," said Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer.

Bowles estimates that each election will cost the county $150,000. The four other counties in the 21st District also face added expenses for the elections.

AIDS leaflet to be brought today in mail

A new brochure, "Understanding AIDS," is being mailed to 110 million homes by the federal government's Centers for Disease Control and should appear in mailboxes beginning today.

"When every household receives this brochure, I hope some family discussion will center on this topic," said Tony Miller, coordinator of the Madison County AIDS Prevention Program.

"We are expecting an increase in the number of calls we handle on our 'AIDS Hotline.' Our business is disseminating accurate AIDS information and answering AIDS-related questions, so we welcome all callers," Miller said.

The Madison County AIDS Prevention Program's AIDS Hotline is funded by the Illinois Department of Public Health and is one of a number of AIDS-related services offered by the program.

The hotline number is 1-800-345-2383 and is staffed from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Celebration planned

A Memorial Day weekend celebration will be held at the Polish Hall, 826 Greenwood St., Madison, on Saturday, May 28 (dances from 8 p.m. to midnight to music by Remede Folk Band) and Sunday, May 29 (barbecue dinners served starting at noon with currys-outs available; dancing starts at 6:30 p.m.).

Matthew 10:8 "...freely you have received, freely give."

One of the most prominent teachings of the Bible is that of giving. In order for us to freely give, we can never think of giving as a duty. For the very moment we begin to do our "duty," we have the sensation of being compelled to do it. Then we give and do not always want to give, and certainly are not giving freely.

Giving is a privilege. God loves a cheerful giver. When we understand that we are pleasing our Heavenly Father, because we give, all giving brings us joy. In this understanding we can give to the unthankful, the underserving, and the greedy, without any remorse whatsoever.

Our nature to give freely reflects the nature of God. And that pleases Him!

Start giving freely. Today.

No legal way to reduce special election costs

EDWARDSVILLE — There is no legal way to cut the costs of special elections for the 21st District congressional seat, Madison County Clerk Charles Bowles told the County Board on May 18.

A special election will be held Aug. 9 to fill the vacancy created when U.S. Rep. Mel Price died April 22. The person elected Aug. 9 will serve until January, when Price's term would have expired.

A primary election will be held July 12 if more than one candidate from either party files for the election, which seemed likely after East St. Louis Republican Charles Minter filed. Robert Gaffner, the Republican candidate in the November general election, also is entering the special election.

Bowles had proposed consolidation of election precincts and the use of three election judges at polling places, rather than the usual five, to reduce the costs of the special elections. But Wednesday she said that the Madison County state's attorney's office believes the measures would not be legal.

"There's no way to get around this, my friends," Bowles told the board. "We don't want anyone to think we're trying to keep anyone from voting," said Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer.

Bowles estimates that each election will cost the county $150,000. The four other counties in the 21st District also face added expenses for the elections.

Stille said consolidation of precincts could make it more difficult for some people to vote.

"We don't want anyone to think we're trying to keep anyone from voting," said Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer.

Bowles estimates that each election will cost the county $150,000. The four other counties in the 21st District also face added expenses for the elections.

Highway safety promoted

The Illinois State Police will join other state and highway police agencies throughout the United States and Canada in Operation CARE during the upcoming Memorial Day Weekend. State Police Director Jeremy D. Margolis said.

Operation CARE (Combined Accident Reduction Effort) is dedicated to saving lives and reducing injuries by promoting highway safety.

Margolis said, "In an attempt to accomplish the goal of reducing traffic accidents, the Illinois State Police will utilize high visibility patrols on designated highways during the Memorial holiday weekend. Officers on these light duty will focus their enforcement efforts toward accident-causing violations such as alcohol-related and speed limit violations."

Margolis called on the motoring public to voluntarily comply with all traffic laws, especially those concerning restraint laws.

He said, "During the 1987 Memorial Day weekend, 369 people were killed in traffic accidents nationwide. Many of these tragic deaths might have been avoided if more people would have worn safety belts."

"In Illinois' last year, we recorded the lowest number of traffic deaths over a Memorial Day weekend. With the cooperation of the public and stringent enforcement, we hope to better the record."

Illinois state troopers will turn their headlights on during daylight hours throughout the holiday to remind motorists to buckle their seat belts. The holiday period begins on Friday, May 27, at 6 p.m. and ends Monday, May 30, at midnight.

Traffic stop leads to multiple charges

Terry David Haynes, 38, 2422 Delmar Ave., was arrested at 2:12 a.m. May 23 and charged with unlawful possession of cannabis, resisting a peace officer and criminal damage to property.

Haynes was the passenger in a car being driven by Penny Sloumb, 24, 1539 E. 20th St., that was stopped by police who said they saw it traveling on 20th Street with a loud muffler and only one headlight.

After the car had been halted, officers reported smelling cannabis. They said a search of Haynes turned up a small foil package. After Haynes was placed in the police car, he allegedly began kicking a door and window, causing some damage to the door. When police opened the door to stop him, he allegedly began kicking them.

At the police station, Haynes reportedly began striking his head against a wall. Taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center for treatment, he then was returned to jail. Sloumb was charged with improper lighting (one headlamp), operating a vehicle with a loud muffler and having no valid driver license.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Sometimes an individual will sign a will and later decide he wants to make changes. The question often arises in these situations as to how the changes should be made.

In one recent case, a husband and wife had their wills prepared in 1982. The husband's will indicated that if he died first, his wife would be the guardian of the children. In the event they died together or if he died last, his will provided that his wife's parents would have the custody of the children. Her will indicated that he would be the guardian of the children when she died. In the event both died together or if she died after him, her will also indicated that her parents would raise the children.

In 1986, she and her husband had a "failing out" with her parents. They reached a point where they no longer spoke to each other. They wanted to change the parts of their wills that named her parents as guardians of the children. They wondered how this could be accomplished.

The first question was whether they could simply mark through the parts of the wills that referred to her parents as the guardians of the children and designate a different guardian in this manner. They were advised that attempting to change the guardian in this manner would be of no effect. The law provides that making a change in a will must be accomplished with the same formalities that were followed when the original will was made. The changes must be properly witnessed and attested, and therefore a person cannot change his will by simply marking through it.

The couple also wondered whether they could just tear up the wills and bring about a change in this manner. They were advised that they certainly have the right to destroy their wills. This would serve to revoke all the provisions of the wills. If they did not have new wills prepared, however, the courts would decide who should be the guardian of the children if the parents died together.

The proper course of action in this situation would be either to have a codicil to their wills prepared or to have entirely new wills prepared. In this manner, they could designate new guardians for the children with the changes being properly witnessed and attested.

Hartigan warns 'airplane' pyramid scheme won't fly

Attorney General Neil F. Hartigan has renewed his warnings against falling into the "airplane" trap.

"Hundreds of Illinois citizens are being victimized by the illegal pyramid scheme called Airplane," Hartigan said. "Not only are those who fall for this get-rich-scheme going to lose their money, but they can face jail sentences as well."

He explained that Airplane is simply an updated version of the old chain-letter or Ponzi scheme which has ripped off victims for years.

Although the details vary, a typical Airplane game involves soliciting individuals to become "passengers" through the purchase of a "seat" on the airplane for a price that has ranged up to $1,500.

The airplane is divided into categories — one pilot, two co-pilots, four flight attendants and eight passengers. When the "plane" is full, it splits down the middle and each co-pilot becomes a pilot, flight attendants move up to co-pilots and passengers are promoted to flight attendants.

"In theory each 'passenger' moves up as new people are recruited, and when they reach the 'pilot' level they are supposed to collect all the money," Hartigan said.

"Except, like all the other schemes of this kind, it doesn't work out that way. The scheme breaks down when passenger seats cannot be sold and the participants wind up not only losing their expected payoff, but their investment as well."

Child abuse seminar slated for educators

Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will offer a course during the summer quarter on the Educator's Role in the Identification, Treatment and Prevention of Child Abuse.

Offered by the School of Education, the child abuse prevention training program has been designed for day care providers, community service providers and public school personnel.

The course has been programmed on a concentrated schedule, meeting in Room 1407 of Classroom Building II from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. for five days, June 13-17. Secondary education majors/teachers may register for the course under ED S 495 Section 5.

Instructor for the course is Robert Rockwell, professor of curriculum and instruction at the university. He will be assisted by Sharon McBrien, prevention specialist with the Piasa Health Care Service in Collinsville.

Other visiting lecturers include: William Wasko, child protection manager with the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services in East St. Louis; Nancy Bobrow, psychologist with the St. Louis Girl Scout Council; Maurine Samson, member of the board of directors for the Oasis Crisis Center in Alton; Lindell Blackford, court liaison

Murray, assistant coordinator with the SIUE Rape and Sexual Abuse Care Center; Dennis Kuba, investigator for the Illinois Department of Criminal Investigation; and Norman Jacob, assistant regional administrator for the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services.

Topics to be considered during the seminar include: the Abuse and Neglect Child Reporting Act; recognizing symptoms of child abuse and neglect, the legal aspects of child abuse and neglect; techniques for providing children and families with information concerning abuse, and resources and services available to victims and perpetrators.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting the SIUE School of Education at 692-3082.

DUIs

St. Louis man charged

Receiving a report from a passerby that a car was stopped in the roadway on West Pontoon Road, about 75 feet west of the Missouri Avenue intersection at 1:25 a.m. May 7, an officer investigated and alleged finding Ronald Wade Huecker, 27, St. Louis, slumped over the steering wheel.

Huecker was awakened and an open bottle of beer allegedly was between his legs, with another bottle alongside him on the seat.

At police headquarters, Huecker was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and illegal transportation of alcohol.

Hit and run, DUI flight alleged

Dean Robert Alexander, 27, 6039 Bruene Ave., Pontoon Beach, was arrested about 2:45 a.m. May 8 in the 100 block of State Street after allegedly side-swiping a parked car on 10th Street near Madison Avenue, leaving the scene and fleeing from a police officer.

Alexander allegedly eluded police for several blocks before being pulled over and arrested. He was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, leaving the scene of an accident, fleeing a police officer, careless driving, and disobeying a stop sign.

Charged with speeding

Kenneth Todd Miller, 22, Bureau, Mo., was arrested at 5:58 a.m. May 1 and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol after police stopped him on Missouri Avenue for going 70 mph in a 35 mph zone. He was also charged with speeding. Miller was released on $392 cash bail.

2 charges against driver

George F. Groves, 33, 2569 Madison Ave., was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and with not having a valid driver license when arrested May 20. The charges were made after a motorist stopped an officer and alleged a red car being driven north on Madison Avenue had almost struck her auto.

A car matching the description given the officer was seen entering the driveway at 2569 Madison Ave. The driver, identified as Groves, then backed out of the drive, allegedly crossing a curb while attempting to park, reports said.

Miss Who?

Live from Lin Kou Stadium, Taipei, Taiwan, in living, breathing color "from the mysterious and exotic Orient," home of an "industrial miracle," 66 of the world's most beautiful women, it's the 37th annual Miss Universe Pageant!!!

Is anybody listening besides the sponsors of this odiferous miff?

"Sure, I am, Alan Thicke! You bet, Tracy Scoggins! I am perfectly willing to be embarrassed for the whole human race as I watch this pap, because I'm hard up for a column and I have absolutely no standards whatsoever."

Early in the show Monday night, the reigning Miss U, the former Miss Chile, uttered something seemingly innocuous.

"What I will remember," she gushed, "is the faces of the children looking up at me with love and admiration."

More than an hour later, this paragon of womanly virtues almost dressed in various costumes that would look right at home in the nearest red-light district and demonstrated for her young admirers the ancient, grunting art of bump-and-grind dancing.

Now, I will admit that I don't find it hard to look at scores of beautiful women—parading around in skimpy bathing suits, though the evening gown competition doesn't do much for me. But why pretend the pageant is anything other than a glorified sex-appeal contest?

That's why I delighted in any aspect of the show that cast it in a footlit light, such as the interview segment.

Many of them attempted to do the interview in English, when English was obviously not their primary language. Take, for instance, Miss USA, Courtney Gibbs, an icy goddess from Fort Worth, Texas. Gibbs was asked by Thicke (rhymes with, uh, hick) whom she would most like to meet.

Nancy Reagan, she responded, because she's been very active in the "DON'T Say No to Drugs" campaign. "Her glacial-like smile almost shattered in a million shards."

"Uh...the JUST Say No to Drugs campaign," she continued lamely, looking for all the world like she had just stepped on a Texas Panhandle rattlesnake.

The universe is definitely shrinking, Miss Hong Kong said the person she would like to meet most in the whole wide world was... Eddie Murphy! "I could learn a lot from him and become a better actress."

Miss Norway, supposedly an aspiring comedienne, joked like she would rather be skinny-dipping in a January flood than standing on that stage. The only remotely funny thing she said was that she had met "a lot of very strange people with this organization, such as the cameramen." They probably were a little bug-eyed.

Let's talk about that organization. Never mind the Miss Universe pledge to "the highest ideals of sportsmanship and friendship," this whole thing is patently a commercial enterprise. It is financed by people with something to sell.

"Here they are their sports-wear by Catalina as they explore the exotic island of Taiwan!"

"Secret—the official anti-perfume of Miss Universe."

The Taiwan Tourist Commission or something got a plug in, presumably free, which was only fair when you consider the Canadian Thicke's feeble attempts at humor. "We're proud to say that this show has a sticker on it that says, 'Made in Taiwan!'"

Life's best when you're sunk

By Boots LeBaron-Daily Breeze

If Ron L. Kibort, 35, was a bank teller, at least once a month he'd expect to be held up. If he was a dentist, he'd want to perform a root canal on King Kong. As a hunter, he'd track a grizzly bear with a sling shot... just for the fun of it.

Freud would have a field day with this 6-foot-4, 200-pound son of a truck mechanic from Granite City. He lives in Manhattan Beach, Calif.

Ron believes that "if you can't have fun in life, you're wasting it." Of course, fun to Ron, a commercial underwater diver, is any adventure where you put your life on the line.

If you shy away from personal challenges because you fear the consequences, you're half dead anyway," said Ron, who doesn't drink or smoke but consistently gambles with his own destiny in and out of the water.

"If you shy away from personal challenges because you fear the consequences, you're half dead anyway," said Ron, who doesn't drink or smoke but consistently gambles with his own destiny in and out of the water.

One day in February 1973, a commercial diver known as "Diver" (Charles) Delgado walked into Ron's scuba supply shop in Granite City and asked in a raspy voice, "Say, kid, I'm looking for a diving instructor. You know anybody who can go with me to Indiana?"

Ron, who'd only been in business for a month, said, "Man, I'll go with you!" "Fine," said the old man. "Oh, just in case you have to go into the water, bring your wet suit."

"For the next four years, I became the commercial diver... Diver never went into the water after that," recalled Ron. "For 35 years, he was the man you'd call to get a job done while other divers couldn't handle it. He was almost a legend. I owe a lot to him. He died a couple years ago."

Seating limited at VP fair show

You'd better be at the VP Fair early if you want to be able to view the July 2 taping of the stage show for ABC television's "Second Annual Star Spangled Celebration," which is being emceed by "Dallas" star Patrick Duffy.

The lack of a main stage at this year's celebration means that the show, which will feature a yet-to-be-announced bevy of top-name talent and be aired July 3, will be based at the Riverfront Overlook Stage with room for only 25,000 on the adjacent hillside. Last year, 175,000 people were able to sit under the Arch to see the taping of the ABC special, said VP Fair spokesman Allyn Glaub.

To compensate for the lack of space, a number of big-screen television monitors will be placed at various locations on the fair grounds, Glaub said. The special, which will launch the third year of Project Literacy US and for which Capital Cities/ABC Inc. is paying independent producer Marty Pasetta $2 million, will include a 6 to 8 minute "commercial" promoting the St. Louis area. Pasetta is doing the filming.

"Last year we were just glad to get the exposure for the city," Glaub said. "When ABC asked to come back this year, we figured we could ask for some favors."

Aside from the ABC special, the July 2 to 4 fair itself will be featuring some top names in entertainment. Early word is that two acts that will be appearing are Mariah Carey, Blackstone and the Nelson Riddle Orchestra.

DIVER RON KIBORT, a former Granite Citian, prepares to go down under.

One evening, after a long day of diving for mussel shells, Ron and Bart Douglas, another diver, were heading home on a scrumptious pepperoni, sausage and bell-pepper pizza when he came across a roadblock.

Kibort recalled, "Somebody had planted a time bomb on a bridge, and the police chief said it would take maybe five hours before an army demolition team would arrive. I told him, 'I have an Illinois explosives license. Let me take a look at it.'"

"There were three sticks of dynamite with some wires attached to an alarm clock. The pizza was getting cold. I just looked at that thing and finally pulled the wires. Nothing happened. When you're 21 years old, you do stupid things sometimes. It was the first and only time I ever earned a bomb."

During the past 10 years as a commercial diver, he has worked or traveled in 38 states.

He has searched for gold bullion from sunken Spanish galleons in the Florida Keys, and has watched from 200 feet as a fellow diver was attacked by a great white shark while diving for sea urchins off San Miguel Island.

He was shot at by a sniper who was trying to discourage him from trying to locate a graveyard of 100 cars that had been dumped in the Mississippi River as part of an insurance scam. And he was trapped beneath collapsed dock pilings when fellow divers deemed the situation too dangerous to go into the fast currents to rescue him.

In Lake Wappapelle near Piedmont, Mo., one night fishermen reported mysterious lights underwater. The sheriff's department hired Ron and Mike Henderson of Granite City, now of Beverly Hills, to go into the water in search of a UFO (unidentified flying object).

"We knew that 10 feet down there would be no visibility. Yet we were supposed to go looking for space creatures," Ron said. "You never know what you'll find."

"So I told the other diver, 'You go down first. And he argued, 'No, you go! As it turned out, we didn't find anything.'"

During the winter of 1974, while checking out a gas pipe-line in the Mississippi River just north of St. Louis, Ron was overcome by odorless natural gas from an underwater leak. "I was about 25 feet below the surface. For about 20 seconds, I knew something was wrong... that I was blacking out."

"There was a boat with two tenders (diver attendants) with an intercom directly above me. On shore, about 125 feet from the boat, there was a group of about 20 people, including my brother, Jeff."

"I remember thinking, 'Pull me up! But I don't remember saying anything. The two tenders, who were standing right next to the intercom, didn't hear anything. Yet, my brother began to scream, 'Pull him up! Pull him up!'"

"Ron," recalled Jeff, a heavy-equipment operator who lives in Huntington Beach, "wasn't breathing when they got him out of his gear. The two tenders, Larry Murphy of Troy and Jon Grams of Granite City, gave him CPR (cardiopulmonary respiration) and saved his life."

"Some things happen that are hard to explain logically," said Ron, referring to the rescue. "When my brother was a kid, he could never get into trouble without my mother knowing about it. They seemed to have this psychic bond between them."

The most terrifying moment Ron can remember is when he was searching through a sunken towboat on the Mississippi for the body of a captain who had gone down with the boat six hours before.

"The water was very cold, and was pitch black. In one of the chambers I hit the side of this man. His hands must have been over his head. They came down around my head hat."

"It was like the devil had me in a bear hug. I struggled and flailed my arms but couldn't get him off of me. I screamed, 'Help! Get me out of here!'"

"When they pulled me out of the water, the first thing they saw was this dead towboat captain who was facing me, and staring out at them. Scared them so much, they dropped us back into the water," he recalled, laughing.

One of about a dozen Americans who have learned the Japanese art of culturing clear-water pearls, Ron is checking out waters in Port Barre, La., for mussel shells used in the process.

For the past year he has been diving in 75 to 80 feet of water around the Channel Islands for prickly sea urchins, which are a delicacy in Japan. One day during the December storms, he and his partner decided it was too dangerous to go out. Later that day, five commercial divers drowned after two boats sank off Santa Barbara.

"I love this business about nine months out of the year," he said, "but I'm not 21 years old anymore. I don't take chances. I don't believe you should dive beyond safety depths. I have a computer attached to my arm that tells me when to come up."

"Sometimes I start thinking, 'I'm getting too old. I've got to get out of this crazy business.'"

"So I get out for a while... Then I'm sucked right back in. It's just a good feeling to be free. You don't become a millionaire in this line of work. But you sure have fun."

Visiting day-care center key when making choice

After giving birth, probably the most difficult experience for working mothers is choosing a day-care situation for their child. Every parent wants quality care for their child, but the question arises of how to judge that quality.

Keeping a balance between quality care, affordability and convenience is the biggest problem working parents face today. For many families, child-care costs are the fourth-largest expense, following food, housing and taxes.

Children grow and develop at a faster rate from birth to age 5 than any other time in their life. The foundation for their future intellectual, emotional and physical development is laid during this time of life.

For these reasons, it is critically important that families get their money's worth in day care. If you are embarking on the great search for child care, there are some resources available to help you. Check with the Illinois Division of Family Services, the agency in charge of licensing day-care centers in the state, for a computerized listing of licensed day-care centers and day-care homes to parents free of charge.

Parents are also encouraged to review the public licensing records of any day-care center being considered. The records include any history of violations or complaints against the day-care center.

The most important way to evaluate a day-care situation is by visiting it yourself. Ann

By Jane Cosby

Watts, licensing supervisor for the state of Missouri, urges parents to visit a center more than once, and make at least one drop-in visit. Be wary of any center that doesn't allow unannounced visits or wants you to come only when the children are not present, Watts says.

Parents need to spend time observing and researching several centers before they choose one. "If parents would take as much time choosing day-care as they do buying a car, there would be less unhappy placements," Watts says.

Pam Paffett, director of Resource and Referral for the Child Day Care Association, tells parents to stay at least an hour at the center, and make a home visit. Parents need to get an accurate picture of the situation in that center or home, and a short 15-minute visit will not give you enough information.

Paffett points out to parents that they know what is best for their child, so the observation of a center or home is very important.

There may be room for a built-in pantry between the studs in your kitchen wall. One Oregon homeowner built a four-door pantry that extends only 4 inches from the wall, each section is 12 inches by 75 inches.

Damp basement? It's important to determine whether the water is coming in from outside or condensing from inside moisture. Tape a sheet of aluminum foil to the wall for a day or two, then check on which side the moisture collects.

Romantic do-over for a bedside lamp: a lace "skirt" over-shade trimmed to complement curtains or sheets.

Sharp cutting tools are safer than dull ones, which require more pressure and so are more likely to slip and cause accidents. And on power saws or drills, the excess pressure will damage the motor, too.

But negotiation is a long way from settlement," Goldenberg said.

Becker said a settlement was reached May 5. He was granted a temporary restraining order May 11, and a temporary injunction May 19, that prohibit the board from taking any action or holding a hearing until the settlement issue is resolved. Becker filed for an enforcement order May 19 to hold the city to the alleged agreement.

Police Chief Bob Astorian said he filed charges against Diak, has not withdrawn them, and never agreed to a settlement. Astorian said he was on vacation when the negotiations took place and opposes them.

He said he wants Diak fired and expects the prosecutor to pursue that course. Hopkins was the prosecutor at the May 9 hearing before the board. He will, Goldenberg said, remain prosecutor if jurisdiction is returned to the board by the circuit court.

Hildebrand's role with Hopkins, who would seemingly be on the same side, became unclear in circuit court when Hopkins agreed to a temporary injunction, in chambers and in open court, and Hildebrand didn't.

The disagreement between Hopkins and Hildebrand became the subject of the City Council's closed session Tuesday with the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners.

In that session, Board President Leyland Ambuehl read a statement, signed by the three commissioners, that chronologically listed the events in the case. It said Hopkins had claimed to represent the board in the case and that he had attempted to remove the board's right of independent counsel.

Hopkins maintains he represented the city in the case.

When the session ended and the open meeting resumed, 13 aldermen voted to authorize the board to hire an attorney in the Diak case. Third Ward Alderman Paul Fisk was not in the room for roll call and did not vote.

Ambuehl said he assumed the board would stay with Hildebrand.

Ambuehl and Board Secretary Linda Irwin both said, assertively, that the board requires legal representation in the case.

Walmesley said the district will request the grant money for the elementary summer school program though the board has canceled it, and if the grant is approved the money will go toward next year's program.

The board had unanimously approved the elementary summer school at its May 3 meeting despite Walmesley's recommendation against it.

Budget, levy hearing tonight

By Valerie Evenden

PONTON BEACH—A representative of the assessor's office is expected to attend a public hearing on the budget and the proposed levy for 7 p.m. today in the Village Hall, Mayor Glen Wilson said Tuesday.

A Truth in Taxation Act notice published in a recent issue of the Press-Record/Journal has caused concern among some residents.

parties; you don't have to ask the judge for permission.

"As appointees of the the mayor, the authority of the board of Fire and Police Commissioners is derivative," Hopkins said.

"I can not understand John saying that," City Attorney Mark Goldenberg said. "I'm sure that when he said it, if that's what he said, he did not say what he meant."

The mayor cannot, Goldenberg said, legally exercise any authority over the board. However, Cruse could, Goldenberg said, authorize Hopkins to negotiate, or even settle, with Becker in the Diak case.

But negotiation is a long way from settlement," Goldenberg said.

Becker said a settlement was reached May 5. He was granted a temporary restraining order May 11, and a temporary injunction May 19, that prohibit the board from taking any action or holding a hearing until the settlement issue is resolved.

Hopkins represented the city in the injunction hearing in circuit court.

Thomas E. Hildebrand was the board's attorney at the May 9 hearing. As such, he also attended the May 19 injunction hearing.

Hildebrand's role with Hopkins, who would seemingly be on the same side, became unclear in circuit court when Hopkins agreed to a temporary injunction, in chambers and in open court, and Hildebrand didn't.

The disagreement between Hopkins and Hildebrand became the subject of the City Council's closed session Tuesday with the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners.

The board had unanimously approved the elementary summer school at its May 3 meeting despite Walmesley's recommendation against it.

The notice stated property taxes as extended or estimated to be extended last year were $7,426 and the proposed levy for the current year is $163,770. The increase is 2,230.9 percent, the notice stated.

Jensen said Tuesday he will prepare a comparison chart for tonight's meeting, showing the amount of property taxes levied against an average home under the present tax levy, compared to the proposed levy.

motorcycles, McFarland said. Entries for the antique, custom and classic car show, set for Sunday, June 5, still are needed.

Ortals said Judges will select the two top vehicles in eight show classes whose owners will receive trophies. More information may be obtained by calling 452-6215 or 768-3322.

Granite City Public Library will sponsor a "Book Fair" on Friday and Saturday, June 4 and 5, offering about 25 tables of used library books for sale.

Horse drawn carriage and surrey rides, pony rides, a petting zoo, food and soft drinks booths, and face painting are among the other activities.

Horseshoe and volleyball tournaments are planned, along with carnival games, concession booths, face painting and a soccer goal kicking contest.

For a temporary fee, festival patrons can enter a taco eating contest at 2 p.m. Saturday, sponsored by Joe Morrison of Tacole Restaurant. A $100 cash prize is being offered to the winner, McFarland said.

John Fornasewski presents a Big Band Concert to launch the festivities at 7 p.m. Friday, June 3, at the 27th Street side of Wilson Park. The remaining activities will take place Saturday and Sunday, June 4 and 5.

The Tune Twisters Polka Band plays from noon to 3 p.m. Saturday at a rock concert at 7 p.m. Saturday.

On Sunday, a barbershop quartet will perform from noon to 2 p.m. followed by the Friends of Bluegrass Band playing from 2 to 4 p.m. Both will appear in the park's 29th Street area.

The Third Wind Band will appear in concert at 7 p.m. Sunday at the 27th Street location.

Informational booths will be sponsored by area banks, Granite City Board of Realtors, St. Elizabeth Medical Center and Granite City Schools, with displays and demonstrations presented in the Ice Rink both days.

Board of education ends summer school

Grant would probably not have been fully approved, and the district would have ended up spending its own money.

Richard Brinkhoff, administrative assistant of elementary education, stated in a memo to Walmesley that the elementary school principals were polled at a meeting earlier this month and made the following observations about the elementary summer school.

Attendance is normally very poor.

Students who need the extra schooling the most do not attend.

Students who do attend do not score better on achievement tests than other students.

Promotion or retention is never based on summer school attendance.

If state funding is denied, the district's money would be better spent in other areas.

If state funding is approved, it could be applied to next summer, thus giving the district time to restructure the program to make it more effective.

Walmesley said the district will request the grant money for the elementary summer school program though the board has canceled it, and if the grant is approved the money will go toward next year's program.

The board had unanimously approved the elementary summer school at its May 3 meeting despite Walmesley's recommendation against it.

Cipfl offered job as BAC president

By Rick Arnold
Staff affiliate

BELLEVILLE — Belleville Grade School District 118 Superintendent Dr. Joseph Cipfl may be the new president of Belleville Area College, officials said.

The BAC offered Cipfl the position and Cipfl has accepted, but the arrangement has not been finalized.

The BAC Board of Trustees has set a July 1 deadline for naming a successor to former chancellor Bruce Wissore, who was fired Dec. 12.

Besides Cipfl, the board interviewed two other candidates during the weekend: Wes Channell, vice-president of Western Tech Community College in Scotts Bluff, Neb., and James Mozek, deputy chancellor of the California community college system.

The board has named Deane Wiley, chairman of the recruitment and screening committee, as its spokesman until it finishes the selection process.

Wiley said the interviews were philosophical in nature. Discussion of contract details was not part of the interviews, since the board will not begin contract negotiations until it has chosen a candidate, he said.

The board also has the right to interview other candidates, Wiley said.

The three candidates were chosen from a field of 60 applicants from across the country, Wiley said.

He said his committee has finished its work. Wiley praised the 13-member committee for its efficiency and hard work.

"I think this was an outstanding committee. They absorbed a lot of data in a very short time," Wiley said. The application deadline was April 18.

Cipfl said Sunday night he had not originally applied for the president's position but that he was nominated by someone on the screening committee.

Cipfl declined to identify who nominated him.

Asked why he agreed to be interviewed, Cipfl said, "I have a strong commitment to southwestern Illinois and education and I'll serve in any capacity I can."

Cipfl declined to comment further, saying he felt it was inappropriate since the board had not yet made a final decision.

BAC cuts two administrative positions

By Rick Arnold
Staff affiliate

BELLEVILLE — The BAC Board of Trustees at its May 18 meeting terminated two administrative positions in a move to help alleviate the college's budget crisis, officials said.

The Business Assistance Center Chancellor B.J. Davis had recommended eliminating the two jobs — agriculture director and director of the Business Assistance Center.

The cuts will save the college $72,000 annually. Assistance Center Miles Reynolds, who holds the business center job, is making $33,453 a year, BAC spokeswoman Kathy O'Dell said. O'Dell said Dave Marshall, the agriculture director, is receiving $38,499.

Reynolds was hired in April 1984 and his last day of work will be June 30, Marshall was hired in April 1985 and his last day will be Oct. 21, O'Dell said.

Davis said both men were not the first to hold their respective positions but he did not know when the positions were created.

The Business Assistance Center provides assistance to small businesses in the area covered by the community college district, Davis said. The center also provides job training programs, he said.

Davis said the center will remain but with a trimmed-down staff.

"We relied largely on grant money to fund the program and as money became tight, we had to look for other sources of revenue. Finally, we had to go into education and into personnel," Davis said.

He said enrollment in the agriculture program has not risen during the past few years, and that Marshall was hired to expand the enrollment.

"Dave gave it the old college try. In this economic time, farming has not caught on in the imagination of young people," Davis said.

Associate Dean Rita Heberer said no students have registered for the five agriculture courses being offered during the summer semester. Registration started April 27, she said.

Davis said Marshall's duties would be handled by Don Koleson, chairman of the Technical Studies Department.

The board voted 6-1 to eliminate the positions, with Trustee Robert Dittelmeyer casting the lone dissenting vote.

The board renewed 15 administrative contracts for one year, including that of community relations director O'Dell. During a May 11 executive session, Trustee Ted Farmer said he had pushed for terminating O'Dell's job and that of Red Bud Campus President Robert Eskridge, but that his proposal fell short of majority support.

Earlier in the May 18 meeting, the board approved the tentative college budget for the 1989 fiscal year.

A deficit of $641,722 is anticipated, Vice Chancellor of Administrative Services Larry Schmalenberger said. This would reduce the mid-summer beginning fund balance from $1.39 million to $749,911 by June 30, 1989, he said.

If the fund balance would fall to that level, the board would miss by a wide margin its goal of keeping the balance at 10 percent of the operating budget, which for the 1989 fiscal year is $15.8 million.

The projected beginning fund balance is higher than the $166,387 balance which had been projected in February, Schmalenberger said. The higher figure is a result of $1.2 million in budget cuts the administration has made since November, Schmalenberger said.

A main factor in the budget cuts was the administration's decision not to purchase a new mainframe computer for the college. The computer would have cost $400,000.

According to a memorandum Schmalenberger prepared on the budget, the deficit is a result of the college receiving $322,493 less in state income during the 1988 fiscal year and of the board's March decision not to raise tuition, despite the administration's recommendation that tuition be raised.

At a Feb. 27 board retreat, Schmalenberger had told the trustees that a tuition increase of $1, $2 or $2.50 in the 1988 fall semester and 1989 spring semester would have generated about $5.2 million in additional revenue.

Expenses are expected to increase by 5 percent and revenues are expected to decrease by 1.2 percent during the 1989 fiscal year, Schmalenberger's memorandum said.

Expenses could increase even more if the minimum wage is increased, the memorandum stated. If the minimum wage was increased by 50 cents during the 1989 fiscal year, it would mean an increase of $92,000 in salaries for student and part-time workers.

Schmalenberger told the board May 18 that the entire college family made sacrifices to get the budget into its present shape. Several requests were denied, including requests for 18 additional staff positions which would have cost $310,000.

Board members had mixed reactions to the budget. Jenner, citing Schmalenberger's statement of cooperation among the college staff, said she was pleased with the budget.

"I personally feel we are moving in the right direction," Jenner said.

But Farmer and Trustee Larry Reinneck were not so optimistic.

"My God, we have a red budget. We have a large income problem," Reinneck said.

Referring to the board's decision earlier in the meeting to eliminate the athletic programs at the Granite City campus, Reinneck said, "I don't know how much longer we can go on with leaky roofs and cutting athletic programs."

"We can't sit idly by and watch $641,000 go by," Reinneck said.

FEET FIRST

SIMPLY CORNY

By-Dr. Claude Hiles

Everything about corns seems simple enough. They form in response to the skin on the toes rubbing against the inside of shoes. Yet, all the simple facts about corns should not lead a person to a simple remedy. Many corn-aufferers treat their problem toes at home with over-the-counter corn removers and medicated pads. These remedies most likely contain acids, and therefore should not be left to the non-professional. Nor is it wise for people to cut their own corns with a razor. This raises the risk of infection by way of an unexpected cut. Instead, allow the podiatrist to trim corns with sterilized instruments.

Some corns, as well as calluses, are symptoms of a more serious condition, such as a bone deformity. Let the podiatrist determine the cause of a corn or callus to ensure proper treatment.

Mother spent her day waiting

Mother's Day 1988 was a long one for Judy Blanke of Edwardsville. She didn't have a traditional, breakfast-in-bed sort of a day.

She was waiting for her son, Matt, to come home. He hadn't popped out to the corner store. He'd been gone eight days, a long time for most 14-year-olds, but Matt is not like most kids.

He's a chronic runaway. In the last nine months, he's hit the road four times.

He also has problems with alcohol, marijuana and pills. Matt has been in substance abuse programs three times since he became a regular user at age 11.

Now he's run away again.

Against that not-so-cheerful backdrop, Mother's Day began for Judy Blanke. She visited her sister. They went shopping. She visited with her older son and his girlfriend.

"All day I had this gnawing, aching feeling I get when he's gone," she said.

Suddenly, midway into the day, the phone rang and a Hollywood happy ending seemed possible.

A woman who lives nearby thought she had just seen the boy whose picture was on a freshly posted Child Find poster. She called Child Find and the agency called Blanke.

Martin on the Metro

By Pat Martin

Another youth in the neighborhood told Blanke and the Madison County Sheriff's Department that he had seen Matt at a party the night before.

A check of that home turned up a piece of paper from a treatment center in Anna, Ill. Matt had been in a program there for two months before his latest run.

"That piece of paper from Anna proved he'd been there," Blanke said. "We were close."

That program, his mother thought, had been an important stepping stone for Matt. While in Anna, he had been evaluated as an emotionally handicapped person, which opened the door for state-funded treatment and education.

"He could get everything he needed," Judy Blanke said. "Treatment, school, everything. I know he was close. He had even talked about going to college."

That step was to have been taken Tuesday. He was scheduled to enter a one-year program in Carbondale at a facility called Hill House.

Ten days before he was to enter Hill House, Matt got a weekend pass from Anna and came home. A day later he disappeared.

His mother thinks two incidents put him over the edge. When he came home, he was rebuffed by relatives at a social function and he found out a girlfriend had started to date someone else. He took off, and the trail was cold until the call Sunday.

The lead fizzled that night. None of the witnesses knew Matt's whereabouts. The case remains current and the description is posted in the usual places: 5 foot, 10½ inches; 130 pounds; brown hair; blue-gray eyes; three tattoos, the most visible of which is a series of numbers on one forearm.

His mother couldn't remember which arm.

"I should," she said, "as many times as I've been through his description."

So ended Mother's Day for Judy Blanke.

Loyalty - Day May was a chance for us as Americans to again reaffirm our loyalty to our country and allegiance to its flag in spirit and action.

Since the 1930s this day has been observed but it wasn't until 1958 that Congress recognized and passed Public Law 359 this very important day.

BAC board's actions loud

Belleville Area College board members say they represent the entire eight-county district. They're fooling no one.

The board's paternal, caring words toward the Granite City and Red Bud campuses don't fit its actions — actions comparable to snubbing unwanted stepchildren.

To restate the most recent in a long-running series of snubs by this board, Red Bud Campus President Bob Eskridge's job was questioned publicly. Cost cutting, they called it, excusing themselves. Though keeping Eskridge, the message to Red Bud is that the board isn't sure the campus is significant enough to have a president.

At Granite City Campus, Bruce Wissore, the board's former whipping boy, doubled as chancellor and GCC president until he got the ax. There is no GCC president these days. GCC isn't important enough to the board.

None of the board members, who live in and near Belleville, question having a president at Belleville Campus.

Another snub to BAC's stepchildren is the board's sports program decision. The board ended the sports program at GCC on May 18; Red Bud never had one. Not so in Belleville. Sports remain there because "there" is Belleville.

Ending costly sports programs with low public interest is understandable, but there's something rotten in Belleville when sports are dropped only at GCC.

Since the board decided there can be only one of each team in the district, the fair thing would have been for the board to place at least one team in Granite City. But the board, in Belleville, seems to have an attitude that everything should be there, in Belleville.

The story of Belleville's board continues this week. The heir apparent to the BAC presidency, Joe Cipri, a grade school district superintendent from Belleville, got the job over a field of applicants that included the deputy chancellor of the California Community College System. Belleville's board chose one of its own — a Belleville boy.

The same thing happened earlier this year when the board had a chance to replace a fellow member. The new member didn't come from Madison or Monroe counties, or even western St. Clair County. Van Smith came from Belleville.

For all its words about representing the entire district, this board's actions show it is of Belleville, by Belleville and for Belleville.

Belleville's board, by its actions, proves the value of the areawide petition drive that's under way to give voters the opportunity to change the way BAC members are elected. Elections from subdistricts will give voters throughout the district — not just from Belleville — a say in how BAC tax money is spent and in how the public is represented.

But until the election in 1989 is held, BAC's stepchildren can expect to continue to suffer from the board's "child abuse."

Salute our heroic hundreds

Memorial Day 1988 on Monday will focus on the heroes who gave their lives in America's armed forces during four wars in the past 70 years and during "cold war" conflicts. Hundreds of Quad Citizens sacrificed themselves in the cause of liberty.

The memorial observance, once known as Decoration Day for the decorating of heroes' graves with flowers and flags, dates back to 1868. Gen. John A. Logan, commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, ordered each military post to conduct suitable ceremonies and the practice was soon adopted by the civilian population.

Gen. James A. Garfield, later president of the United States, spoke on the first memorial holiday and summarized it well: "For love of country, they accepted death and made immortal their patriotism and virtue."

As the American Legion and other groups are saying, "From their final resting place, these patriots call out not only to loved ones left behind, but to all of us to remember. They were only with us for a short time and we remain forever grateful to them. May God's light shine upon them. We miss them and we will never forget."

Tax proposal will test voters

Should we try to get government "off our backs" or utilize it to provide needed services? Attitudes toward this issue are tested in many elections, and a classic tax vs. economy question may be decided on local ballots Nov. 8.

The Illinois House has voted to raise the Metro East Sanitary District real estate tax rate limit from 21 cents to 48 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation. If the public approves, whether the referendum is held depends on the Illinois Senate and governor.

A rate change of this amount would be difficult to pass. Balanced against this is the need to qualify for up to $25 million in federal funds to more fully protect Metro East people and property from the ravages of river and runoff flooding.

East St. Louisans learned to their sorrow that the Mississippi can invade local communities, and there is little doubt that the vital network of levees, drainage ditches and pumps needs to be refurbished. The question is whether voters regard it as important enough to justify added taxation.

MESD before using such federal allocations wants to assure adequate funding for the local share of the construction cost and for necessary yearly maintenance costs.

Voters owe it to themselves to study all the pros and cons as details become available.

Letters

Revise state's revised statutes

To the editor:

For more than a century, Illinois has lacked an official record of state statutes, a situation that has created confusion and led in some cases to misapplication of the law. For these reasons, the Illinois Supreme Court has recommended that the General Assembly take action this year to remedy the situation.

In the interest of good public policy, state lawmakers should answer the court's call by ending the monopoly that a single, out-of-state company holds over publication of the Illinois Revised Statutes. It is a monopoly that has been costly and inefficient for the state's taxpayers.

As the court noted in a memorandum to the General Assembly earlier this year, "the structure and composition of the official compilation of Illinois statutes is a governmental function."

Right now, the accepted but unofficial version of our state laws is the Illinois Revised Statutes — needs the kind of reworking that a healthy dose of competition would provide. In that same memo to the Legislature, the Supreme Court said the statutes are "poorly organized," duplicative and confusing.

It cited three recent appellate court opinions in which confusion about the organization of the statutes led to disagreements over the law, and then concluded:

"If the Illinois Revised Statutes confound lawyers and judges who are trained in the law, then non-lawyers of ordinary intelligence must be stupefied by the statute books."

The Illinois General Assembly thus has plenty of reasons to take action in this issue of ownership of the Illinois Revised Statutes and the operations of the company that publishes them, West Publishing Co. of St. Paul, Minn.

When you stop and think about it, it is almost incredible that an out-of-state company would claim that it "owns" and can control the use of the state's public acts, as reprinted in the Illinois Revised Statutes.

West gets away with this by claiming a copyright on the numbering system used to organize the laws. It makes this claim despite the fact that the numbering system was developed by a state employee, Harvey B. Hurd, in the 1970s — at state expense.

According to West, neither the state nor its citizens may, without West's permission, use Illinois law with its commonly understood section numbers and means (for example, "Chapter 120 — Revenue").

What makes this all the more unbelievable is that taxpayers have been subsidizing West's profitable publication of the state laws. Each year, the General Assembly's Legislative Reference Bureau proofreads and compiles newly enacted laws, gives them chapter and section numbers and then ships the computer tapes to West.

West simply inserts the new laws into the Illinois Revised Statutes, and turns around and sells the information to lawyers, state agencies and others.

The General Assembly has earmarked $25 million for the Legislative Reference Bureau over the past two decades, a portion of which has gone indirectly into West's pocket. West has never reimbursed the state for this staff time.

This is inefficient and costly to taxpayers, prevents full public access to state laws and should be eliminated. Because West's claims a copyright on the numbering system, nobody can compile lists of state laws using the chapter and section numbers without risking a lawsuit by West.

The simple solution to this crazy situation is to pass a law declaring that the Illinois Revised Statutes, and the chapter and section numbers used to organize them, are the official property of the state of Illinois and belong to the public domain. This would ensure the broadest and least expensive access to a better organized code of law.

Girls need to go to camp

To the editor:

Margaret is the oldest child in a family of five. She is a typical pre-teen who may live down the street, around the corner, or in the apartment complex across town.

When summer comes and school is over, Margaret and hundreds of girls like her will need wholesome activities that will help them grow in confidence, cooperation and responsibility. That is why we need your continued help.

The River Bluffs Girl Scout Council provides summer camping opportunities for girls in the Metro East. There are many girls in Granite City who would like to go to camp this summer but can't because of family hardships. Margaret is just such a girl.

In 1987, the Girl Scouts disbursed over $6,100 in camperships to deserving girls. This enabled 196 campers to learn about the out-of-doors, discover the spirit of teamwork and just have fun. In addition, the council provided $125,200 to keep the camping program operating and available.

This year, we must raise $14,000 for financial assistance for girls. A gift of $50 or at least $25 would help girls participate in a program that will develop their leadership skills and gain a greater understanding of themselves and others.

Last year, Margaret benefited from her camping experience — an experience she'd never have had, if camperships were not available.

We have come to depend upon people with strong convictions to support our area youth.

News not hard to get printed

Getting news printed is easier than defining it. Defining it can be tough since each journalist has a personal definition. But mine's easy: "News is whatever I say it is."

Like the U.S. Supreme Court justices who couldn't define pornography, but knew it when they saw it, I know news when I see it. You do, too.

To narrow the definition to something workable, though, my news criteria includes that it be timely and of interest to many people.

When called about covering a potential story, I first ask myself if I have staff available. If called minutes before an event, there may be no one available. A warning given a day or two in advance helps, but it is best to arrange coverage a week ahead.

If staff is available, then I determine if the caller has news. In some communities, for example, each heavy rain is followed by calls from people with flooded basements. I have compassion for such persons, but how many times do we tell the public what it already knows — that there's a drainage problem? Old news is no news.

In such cases we ask callers to write letters to the editor, unless there's a new angle to the story as happened in one Metro East community when a caller with a flooded basement said it was filled with milk from a nearby dairy. There was a new angle to an old story and I wrote that story.

If there is nothing new or interest is limited, the caller can opt to write a press release (a self-generated story). Virtually any local press release will be in the newspaper. Weddings, club news, social events — things we don't cover, but wish we could — are considered important to us.

If there is news, we print it. That's in line with the theory that our newspaper "is all about you."

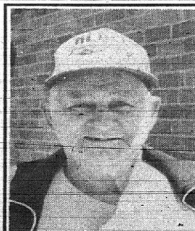

To summarize for those who don't take notes, to get a story in the newspaper:

- 1) Call the editor and seek a reporter or photographer to cover the story because the story is of interest to many people and has not been written previously.
- 2) If the editor cannot spare a reporter, then write a letter to the editor.
- 3) If the editor cannot spare a reporter, then write a press release about the event.

Is proposed DUI law change good?

Secretary of State Jim Edgar has proposed making the state DUI (driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs) law more strict by changing the allowable blood alcohol content level from 0.10 to 0.05 percent. This is one half the amount of alcohol content currently allowed before charges can be made. What do you think about this proposal?

Howard Followell,
Granite City

"Me, I'm for no drinking at all, period. I had a 25-year-old brother, and his wife and two kids, who were killed by a drunk driver. I guess I'm prejudiced."

Dave Polivick,
Granite City

"I think .05 would be too low. That would mean the average person who goes to a party and has two drinks and leaves within one and a half to two hours could possibly be arrested and convicted. That's not the intent of the DUI laws."

Doyle Birk,
Granite City

"I'm really against it. Although it's good to keep the drunk drivers off the road, they shouldn't get ridiculous with the laws. The laws are good enough as they are. They're doing the job."

'Cash for Kids' announces 1989 plans

By Lucyann Boston
Staff affiliate

In 1989, metropolitan residents again will have a chance to save more than $50 on their grocery bill via Cash for Kids coupons, which will be distributed in the Suburban Journals.

Money raised through the Cash for Kids program goes to the Sammy Davis Jr. Variety Club Telethon. This year's program contributed more than $1.2 million to the March telethon — almost half of the fund-raiser's $2.6 million total.

Cash for Kids funds are raised through the purchase of redemption coupons and ads by companies that produce or broker products sold in grocery stores. The coupons and ads are compiled in a newspaper supplement that will be distributed in the Suburban Journals during the week before the telethon, which is scheduled for March 4 and 5 in 1989.

At this month's Victory Luncheon at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel in Westport Plaza, area food industry representatives who sponsor the program launched the 1989 campaign with the introduction of kits that will go out to more than 1,000 food company representatives and food brokers nationwide.

The sponsors also previewed a video explaining the success of the program. And Cash for Kids Chairman Gene O'Neill, who heads Tyben Consulting Corp., gave an admonition to "think kids."

Veteran telethon chairman Johnny Landoff, a north St. Louis County area dealer, called the food industry representatives who put competition aside to run the program "one of the most organized, dedicated groups Variety has ever seen. They are respected nationally and internationally," he said.

During the luncheon, O'Neill presented Suburban Journals President Norman R. McMullin with a plaque of appreciation for the newspapers' "contribution, dedication, time and effort" in the Cash for Kids program.

Varity Club President Zane Barnes, chairman and chief executive officer of Northwestern Bell Corp., pointed out that each coupon purchased for the supplement means the organization has the ability to buy one artificial arm or two wheelchairs for children.

Cash for Kids not only helps children, but it also helps business, said those who participate in the program.

In the first year of the program in 1982, when Cash for Kids raised only $60,000, Ralston Purina purchased one coupon. That coupon, and subsequent coupons purchased by the corporation, proved so successful that Ralston purchased two full pages of coupons in 1988, according to Fred Meyland-Smith, vice president of Ralston's grocery sales division.

Ore-Ida, manufacturer of frozen potato products, found that its Cash for Kids coupon "represents the highest redemption rates of any coupon in the United States," said John Rocco, a local Ore-Ida representative.

"The real magic of the program is in the (food industry's) ability to transform marketing dollars into charitable dollars," said Scott C. Schnuck, corporate vice president of marketing and merchandising for Schunk Markets Inc.

New Holiday Garden homes BH&G magazine approved

GRANITE CITY — Sixteen new homes currently being added to the Holiday Garden subdivision on Maryville Road are being built following floor plans that carry the official stamp of approval of Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

These are the first homes in the area to use plans meeting the stringent criteria for livability and style required by Better Homes and Gardens before approval can be granted, a spokesman said.

The project, under the direction of George Crews, Crews Realty/Better Homes and Gardens Real Estate Service, is being developed by the Tierce/Crews Construction Co., which is headed by engineer and contractor Richard Tierce of Granite City.

The development is being financed through Magna Bank, Granite City, and the homes will be exclusively marketed through Crews Realty/Better Homes and Gardens.

The development will include two-, three- and four-bedroom houses. All have full basements and range from 1,000 to 1,800 square feet.

The homes will all be located on ½-acre lots and Crews estimates they will be priced in the $90,000 to $120,000 range. The subdivision is in the Frohardt School District.

"This development is a starting point for future new construction in our community," Crews said. "It signifies that there is a forward growth trend in the area. That is a very positive statement for our community."

Healthy trend indicated in region's economy

First-quarter economic indicators for the St. Louis region show a healthy economy, reports the Regional Commerce and Development Association, a department, which concluded that the positive trends are likely to continue over the coming year.

This is evidenced, in part, by the lowest unemployment rate since 1979, according to the RCGA. The association released its findings in mid-May.

The first-quarter statistics indicate payroll employment is up 0.2 percent from the previous quarter. This represents a payroll workforce of 1,134,000 in the area. Comparisons of payroll jobs registered in March 1988 to those registered a year previously indicate a 1.5 percent increase, or 17,100 additional payroll workers.

Although the unemployment rate is down by only 0.4 percent from last quarter, the St. Louis region posted an unemployment rate of 6.0 percent in March — a level far below the 7.1 percent of March 1987 and the lowest rate recorded since November 1979.

The service sector, including a wide variety of businesses from health to hotels, is credited with showing the greatest growth in labor and employment. Topping this non-manufacturing sector in growth are business and professional services such as engineering, legal, accounting, public relations, advertising, data processing and employment agencies.

A comparison of 1979 figures in the non-manufacturing sector with those recorded in March 1988 reveals a growth of 18 percent.

There is no reason to believe that manufacturing production is lower today, especially noting the increase in automation, the RCGA said. For example, as a result of the investment of over $1 billion by General Motors, Chrysler and Ford, the number of motor vehicles assembled has increased while employment has dropped.

Retail sales are another economic indicator higher than the fourth quarter of 1987, showing an increase of 2.4 percent. They have been ascending since the third quarter of 1987.

About real estate

By Don Campbell

Payment quest needs good lawyer's services

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I purchased undeveloped real estate in 1976 and 1983, the first piece was 1.31 acres and the second was 2.47 acres. Each is located on a major boulevard and corner. The county plat map shows No. 1 as .96 acres and No. 2 as 1.35 acres.

I recently filed for zoning for development of the property and all papers showed 1.31 acres and 2.47 acres, respectively. Yet I was told that I would have to sign over, for future road use, the size difference, which amounts to .35 acres on No. 1 and 1.09 acres on No. 2. This deprives me of .44 acres of land.

Two U.S. Supreme Court cases in 1986 seem applicable: "Nolan et al. vs. California Coastal Commission," and the other concerning a church group in Los Angeles County. Both seem to require payment for such "taking" of property.

I would appreciate your comments because this affects many property owners.

W.S. Answer: I bounced this off a lawyer specializing in real estate law (which, incidentally, is also going to have to be your first order of business), and he was pretty impressed with your research. Like a lot of court decisions involving real estate, interpretation is the name of the game. Having a couple of court decisions capably supporting your argument is great, especially logically, but it still does not mean clear sailing. It could be a rough fight.

To simplify it as much as possible, here's what the lawyer I consulted interpreted the meaning of those two decisions: To require the signing over of property without compensation the city or county must establish a clear and rational connection between what it intends to do with the property and how your proposed use of it would be infeasible. In the absence of such a connection, the city, for instance, simply wants it because at some vague time in the future it might want to widen the road and your development of the land would make that impossible, then the property owner must be compensated.

However as I am sure you know, this apparent applicability in your case is a long, long way from being as good as money in the bank. Get yourself a good lawyer.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

When you make an extra principal-only payment in addition to your regular mortgage payment, is it advisable to write a second check for this amount?

T.D. Answer: Maybe it's a little bit like wearing a belt in addition to suspenders but, generally, yes. If your lender's computer is sophisticated enough, it shouldn't make any difference if you lump the two payments together. But, from my own personal experience, two separate checks can save a lot of headaches. The computer doesn't recognize the odd amount and kicks the whole check out for manual processing.

Moving company selection important choice

By Neil F. Hartigan
Illinois attorney general

My husband and I will be moving at the end of summer elsewhere in the state and we're considering getting a moving company to do our move.

Can you give us some suggestions when we go to contact a mover as to what we should look for?

A. Selecting a reputable mover is very important when one contemplates moving. People move every day. According to the U.S. Bureau of the Census, approximately 17 percent of the people in the United States change their place of residence every year.

When you entrust your personal belongings to someone you want to know and feel assured that the articles being moved will get to their destination.

There are some basic things to look for when deciding on a mover. First of all, be sure your mover has a Certificate of Authority, which could be referred to as a license.

All movers moving goods within Illinois must be licensed by the Illinois Commerce Commission. Movers who cross state boundaries are regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Movers who are not licensed are acting in violation of state law.

You should always obtain more than one written estimate from movers. Obtain references from individuals whom they have moved in recent months, and then contact those people to find out if the mover did a good job.

Get an explanation of the mover's liability for damage to the property which they move, and request an explanation of any extra or special charges that may be incurred, such as stair carrying charges, hoisting charges, packing and unpacking charges, and travel time.

These things should be done anytime before you choose a mover.

Q. We recently returned from a trip and the airline claims to have lost our luggage. What should we do?

A. Once your bag is declared officially lost, you have to submit a claim.

Some airlines will proceed using the form that you filled out when your bag was simply considered delayed; others may require you to fill out a different form. Check on this. Failure to complete the second form which required could delay your claim.

The airline will usually refer your claim form to a central office, and the negotiations between you and the airline will begin.

Airlines don't automatically pay the full amount of every claim they receive. First they will estimate the value of your lost belongings; like most insurance companies, airlines consider the depreciated value of your possessions, not the replacement cost.

Airlines may completely deny claims they feel are inflated or if you have any further questions, they can help you write or call the Illinois Commerce Commission, 525 East Capitol Avenue, Springfield, Ill. 62756, telephone number (217) 782-2593, or you may call your local Attorney General's Office.

Ladle metallurgy facility featured at AISI meeting

John Pruett, Granite City Steel engineer-maintenance administration, addressed the April 19 American Iron and Steel Institute (AISI) conference in Toronto, Canada, with a presentation about the Granite City Division's ladle metallurgy facility.

The presentation included slides of LMF operations and discussions of LMF equipment and manpower, treatment patterns, desulfurization, ladle refracry, and productivity improvements.

Pruett also discussed LMF operational improvements in 1987 which allowed Granite City Steel to produce long sequences of low sulfur, inclusion shape control steel for the caster and consequently opened new markets for Granite City Steel.

Pruett said the presentation was well received and many inquiries were made about the division's LMF operation.

Summer price drops expected in metals market

By Bob Hardcastle

The metals markets have been on the go during the last year, moving in both directions.

In 1987, we saw platinum climb near $600 an ounce, gold followed to as high as $300 an ounce and silver reaching $11 an ounce.

Since the beginning of 1988, all the metals, with the exception of copper, have suffered strong pull-backs. Gold fell from $500 to $425, silver moved from well above $8 range to $6.10 and platinum, which even fell below gold in February, has been as low as $440 this year.

But despite these dips, the three metals turned around sharply in March. Gold moved up to $460 and silver climbed to $8.70. Platinum shot up, gaining nearly $100 an ounce from the February low as it moved to $532.

The copper market has been the only metal that really has been moving on its own. On many trading days you will find copper going the opposite direction of the big three—gold, platinum and silver. Copper moved from about $1.50 an ounce at year's end to 80 cents and now is trading around $1.10.

Each time the platinum market would break down during the last two years it would stop somewhere around the support level of $540 an ounce. Now platinum is banging up against this range, which means the old support level has become the new resistance level.

I do not believe the metals markets are going to move much higher for the time being; the current resistance levels of $540 for platinum, $470 for gold and $7 for silver should turn the markets downward. I expect new lows for the year to come this summer.

Investors usually move into the metals markets when they fear inflation or anticipate a war or disaster. I do not believe we are seeing inflation; I also do not foresee any flight to security because of a threat of war.

When it comes to the metals markets, many people do not fully understand how investors are effected by the metals prices that are posted daily in newspapers and announced on radio and television. The basic point to remember is that metals are traded in amounts specified by contracts.

McKinley deserves high priority

The King Bridge is falling down, falling down. Not any longer, of course, but the paraphrase of the nursery rhyme gives an idea of why Illinois and Missouri are trying to acquire the East St. Louis bridge and later closed it for repairs. Destined to be tied in more fully with the Interstate highway system, the newly-free Martin Luther King Jr. toll bridge literally was beginning to fall apart.

BEFORE VENICE'S McKinley Bridge falls into the same category, it deserves the same treatment — acquisition and remodeling. St. Clair County Board Chairman Jerry Costello, Granite City Rotarians last week.

It was a non-political speech, if that's possible in a case in which the speaker is a candidate in four elections.

McKinley's usefulness has been increased this year by opening more toll booth lanes and by stationing traffic officers at bridge exits during rush hours.

But several trips over the Mississippi River in recent days have convinced me that McKinley is getting mighty rough and that a better-financed maintenance/repair program is essential.

OTHER METRO EAST priorities mentioned by Costello included support for rehabilitation of Metro East Sanitary District (MESD) ditches and pumps (to avoid flooding by the Mississippi River and bluff runoff water) and construction of the proposed Metro Link rapid transit "light rail" system.

Costello praised Walter "Bunny" Grathouse for his MESD leadership and Carl E. Mathias for his service in the Bi-State Development Agency and the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council.

Mathias is a past Bi-State chairman and Costello is the current Gateway chairman.

IN BACKING the proposed construction of Metro Link, Costello took a stand differing from that of Madison County Transit District Chairman William Haine. Haine wants the light-rail plan dropped entirely and is threatening to seek withdrawal of Madison County from Bi-State's territory.

Costello said he would oppose a Metro Link financial commitment by St. Clair County pending clarification of prospects for expanding the basic East St. Louis-to-Lambert Airport route. But he isn't against proceeding with creation of Metro Link.

He said Belleville, Granite City, Edwardsville and Alton might be logical locations for spur lines to the 18-mile-long rapid transit main line.

LANDFILL SOLUTIONS are

important for Metro East, which hopes to devise new solid waste management policies, Costello said. He saluted Don Adams of Granite City for his work in regional land pollution study groups.

A 911 emergency telephone system would be an asset here if it utilizes newly enhanced technology, the speaker said.

He indicated he has been attending an enormous number of agency and plan group meetings and hearings on a variety of subjects, including sessions of the Illinois Committee of 50. That committee is considering whether to recommend a "yes" or "no" vote to citizens regarding the Nov. 8 ballot question on calling an Illinois state constitutional convention.

CIVILIAN AIR TRAVEL feasibility for Scott Air Force Base is the topic of a state study panel, appointed by Gov. Jim Thompson and chaired by Costello.

It is Costello's position that he could be instrumental in advancing a number of these regional proposals if he is elected to Congress. Of course, to the extent he is currently involved, a partial vacuum of activity and knowledge might be created by his departure for Washington.

Undoubtedly, Bob Gaffner, Costello's likely Congressional opponent in August and November, will be outlining his own views on these and other topics as the campaign progresses. We'll keep you posted.

REGIONAL NOTES this week include annual financial disclosures by the two U.S. senators from Illinois.

Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Bellefonte, had a net worth in 1987 of $1,057,000, up slightly from $1,030,000 in 1986. The figures equaled his assets; he had no liabilities either year.

Dixon received $87,483 salary as a senator and a $30,841 payment from the Illinois General Assembly Retirement System as his pension for 20 years in the Illinois Legislature. In return for giving speeches, he accepted $34,900 and donated another $11,550 to charities.

Dixon had savings of $317,000 and homes worth $487,000, plus stocks, bonds, three autos, interest in a commercial building, and half of a travel agency.

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Madison, formerly of Madison County, a few weeks ago listed his net worth as $142,735.

Mandatory insurance passes Illinois House

Legislation requiring mandatory auto insurance passed the Illinois House on May 18, according to a co-sponsor of the measure, Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Granite City.

"I am happy to say the mandatory auto insurance legislation is now on its way to the Senate," Wolf said. "Study after study has shown overwhelmingly that the people of Illinois want to see this measure become law."

Wolf, a longtime proponent of mandatory auto insurance, said the legislation will require every vehicle and operator in Illinois to be covered by liability insurance. The minimum amounts are $20,000/$40,000 for personal injury or death and $15,000 for property damage.

"Currently, one out of five drivers in Illinois is not covered by insurance," Wolf said. These uninsured motorists are costing the rest of us millions of dollars a year in damages.

Every driver in this state will be protected if they are in an accident," Wolf said.

He said the secretary of state will suspend the vehicle registration of any person found not to have the proper insurance, if the law passes.

Political pros giving Costello, Gaffner opponents no chance

By Edward T. Hearn
P-R/J Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — Officials in both political parties are predicting that Democrat Jerry Costello and Republican Robert Gaffner will easily get past their little-known challengers in the July 12 special primary.

They say the special primary will amount to little more than a tune-up for Costello and Gaffner before they meet twice within four months, on Aug. 9 and Nov. 5, to become the successor to the late Rep. Melvin Price.

The special primary became necessary when Gaffner, Costello and two others filed for the race, the winner of which serves out the few remaining months of Price's two-year term.

Costello, chairman of the St. Clair County Board, is running against one opponent in the primary, East St. Louis Aldermanic Council Chairman Tom Clarnie. Ellis Sr. Ellis entered the race Monday, the last day to file for the special primary.

Gaffner, a community college official who lost the 1986 general election to Price by fewer than 1,000 votes, is facing East St. Louis resident Charles Mister, who keeps an unlisted phone number and remains a virtual mystery candidate to district party leaders and Gaffner himself.

"It's just a sort of perfunctory, almost clerical roadblock rather than anything else for each of the candidates," said Tim Meyer, Midwest field representative for the National Republican Congressional Committee on Capitol Hill.

Meyer said both Ellis and Mister should consider dropping out because neither has a chance of appearing on the November ballot. Costello and Gaffner earned the right to run for a two-year term this fall by winning their party primaries March 15.

Ellis said he was running to bolster the influence of East St. Louis, which he said gets treated as a second-class citizen by the St. Clair County Board.

"I'm trying to send a message to Costello more than anything else," Ellis said. "I don't think we have been treated fairly when it comes to jobs and the kind of help we can get from the county."

Bruce Cook, a lawyer and 21st District Democratic central committee member, gave the Ellis campaign little chance of topping Costello.

"Realistically, he may be trying to make a statement or something but he really hasn't a chance. It's certainly his right to run and if he wins, of course, we'll support him," Cook said.

Mister, Gaffner's opponent, was unavailable for comment. Gaffner said he has never heard of his primary foe, and 21st District Republican Central Committee member Ed Ragsdale said Mister is a mystery.

"It's very strange," Ragsdale said. "I don't think anybody knows (Mister)."

Peggy Connelly, communications director for the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, said she saw a race between just Costello and Gaffner in order to spare the local counties some of the estimated $300,000 cost of holding both the

Gaffner, Reagan will meet

By Edward T. Hearn
P-R/J Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — Illinois Republican House candidate Robert Gaffner has been invited to meet with President Ronald Reagan in the White House on June 13 when Gaffner and five other Congressional hopefuls plan to pick up presidential endorsements.

Reagan is scheduled to meet in the Oval Office alone with Gaffner and later with the entire Republican group for a total of about 15 minutes to talk over campaign strategy and pose for a photo-taking ceremony, Gaffner said Monday.

Mark Neuman, White House associate director of the Office of Political Affairs, said the meeting was for a small group of select congressional candidates. Bob (Gaffner) will be one of them.

Gaffner, a trustee of Kaskaskia Community College and employed by the St. Louis Community Colleges, is running in November against Democrat Jerry Costello in the race to succeed Rep. Melvin Price, the St. Clair County Democrat who died last month. Gaffner ran unopposed in the March primary.

special primary and special election.

We were hoping... that the two elected by the National voters would be the only candidates in the special election."

Connelly said. "It's a little strange that these folks didn't come out in the earlier campaign, but it's a free country."

Costello said he was selected by Gov. James R. Thompson five days after Mr. Price's death April 22. Costello, a Democrat who entered the House in 1948 during President Franklin D. Roosevelt's fourth term, had this term in January 1989.

Absent a popular incumbent running for re-election and buoyed by Gaffner's solid showing two years ago, the Republicans are training their sights on the district, and hoping to reverse a decades-long trend of Democratic control.

"We are certainly targeting the district," Meyer said. "We are in the process of helping (Gaffner) put together a plan. We have a great opportunity out there. I think you have a fractured (Democratic) party."

Meyer said Costello would be vulnerable because he won the March primary with about 45 percent of the vote and after having spent much to beat Mr. Mansfield, Pete Fields and Steve Maragides.

Costello spent about $323,000 during the first three months of 1988, according to documents Costello filed with the Federal Election Commission.

"We have a candidate who I think would have great name identification and came very close to beating a very popular incumbent, versus a guy who barely won his own primary with $480,000," Meyer said. "If we would win that, it would be a Gaffner said the White House session was in lieu of a Reagan campaign swing through the 21st Congressional District, a Democratic stronghold since 1945 when Price entered the House.

"The president just has too many other things to do, not that House seats are not important," Gaffner said. "I would love it."

Two years ago, Gaffner ran against Price and lost by fewer than 1,000 votes. Costello earned the right to appear on the Nov. 8 ballot by winning a four-way race with about 45 percent of the primary vote.

Both Gaffner and Costello are expected to win easily in the July 12 special party primaries and their clash in the Aug. 9 special election. Although the winner will serve out the few remaining months in Price's term, the pair face each other again in November.

Gaffner said he and Reagan see eye-to-eye on many issues, including reductions in government spending, aid to the Nicaraguan contras, ratification of the intermediate-range missile treaty with the Soviets, and continued research on the Strategic Defense Initiative.

big boost for the party in the state and nationally."

Connelly, however, said Costello remains popular in St. Clair County and around the district, a well-financed candidate who will campaign hard and won't be easy to beat in an area largely viewed as a Democratic stronghold.

Bill would let workers see personnel records

The Illinois House Labor and Commerce Committee has approved a bill that would permit employees to review their personnel records.

A previous law was proven unconstitutional because it allowed employers to review material that was used in management planning and, to determine salary increases.

The committee also passed a bill sponsored by Jim McPike, D-Alton, that would ban employers in the hospitality industry from requiring a lie detector test as a condition for work or continuing employment.

Both bills face opposition by the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, which considers them "a piecemeal attack on industry."

Pull-tab gambling to join bingo games

The Illinois Department of Revenue will soon be issuing licenses allowing eligible non-profit organizations to hold licenses for pull tabs and jar gambling games.

These games require participants to purchase preprinted cards and peel off or scratch off a coating to reveal whether a cash prize has been won.

The licenses will cost $500 annually. Groups that plan to hold a pull tab or jar event only once a year may purchase a $50 permit. No game will be allowed to cost more than $1 a ticket, and the maximum individual prize allowed will be $250. Organizations will pay a 5 percent tax on gross proceeds. Any group which holds a bingo game is eligible.

Organizations that wish to apply are to call (217) 785-5864 or write to the Illinois Department of Revenue, P.O. Box 1919, 101 W. Jefferson St., Springfield, Ill. 62794-9019.

Seat belt backers set 'Buckle Up Week'

National, state and regional activities will cap "All-American Buckle Up Week" being celebrated now through May 30, the end of the Memorial Day weekend.

"I am personally asking folks to just give the belts a concentrated effort for a week. It's an easy habit to develop, a good habit and a habit which could change your life for the better — maybe even save it. Because they encourage good posture, most people actually find they are more comfortable with belts on than they were without them," said Mel Smith, state director of traffic safety.

National events will include a kickoff ceremony at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway where famous drivers will promote seat belt use on national broadcast.

Future bleak for American

The uncertain future of the American Theater in downtown St. Louis is a sign of an even deeper problem on the St. Louis entertainment scene, a problem that could spell the end of an era for St. Louis theatergoers, said Frank C. Pierson, a longtime St. Louis theatrical producer.

At the end of this summer, Pierson will not renew his lease on the American. He has leased the historic showplace for 15 years.

"Like the Hannah theater in Cleveland or the Lyric in Kansas City, the American's size has made it economically undesirable for the booking of traveling shows, even relatively small dramatic pieces," Pierson said.

"For instance, shows like 'Morning at Seven' and the big Tony winner, 'I'm Not Rappaport,' were big losers when they played the American. The theater has 1,800 seats and only 1,500 of those are really good enough that people will buy them. When you lose money with a show like Rappaport, the hand writing is on the wall."

About 300 of the theater's seats are unpopular with theatergoers because of their location high in the upper balcony, Pierson said.

'Scoops of Fun' at Union Station

St. Louisans once again can fill up on 2,500 gallons of ice cream — about 200,000 individual servings — when the "Scoops of Fun" Ice Cream Celebration returns to St. Louis Union Station on June 11 to 12.

The Saturday and Sunday lick-in will benefit the neonatal intensive care unit at Cardinal Glennon Children's Hospital of St. Louis, which received more than $38,000 from the event last year.

Area retailers and suppliers this year will provide an unlimited amount of ice cream for donations of $2 per adult donation and $1 for children 12 and under.

Ice cream booths will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

During the extravaganza there will be a celebrity milking contest, stage acts, jugglers and clowns, plus an opportunity to see calves, visit exhibits on nutrition, and participate in several "dipping" contests.

A special drawing will be held and festivalgoers can win their weight in ice cream. Radio stations KMOX-AM (1120) and KHTZ-FM (103.3) will broadcast the proceedings live from Union Station.

"Scoops of Fun" aims to promote the goodness of real dairy products while observing the 52nd annual June Dairy Month.

Sponsors are the Midland United Dairy Industry Association and the local American Dairy Association, in cooperation with the St. Louis District Dairy Council.

St. Louis Antiques Show at university

Have you been wondering whether that Chinese vase your grandmother gave you or the landscape painting you inherited from your Great Aunt Maude is worth anything?

The place to find out is at the St. Louis Antiques Show at the Washington University Athletic Complex where Thursday, May 26, representatives from Christie's, the famed London auction house, will be on hand from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. They will give verbal appraisals of paintings, drawings, prints, jewelry, sculpture, American, European or Oriental works of art, silver, pewter and furniture. Large pieces of all types can be appraised from a clear photograph and exact measurements.

There will be a $10 per item charge for appraisals in addition to the $5 admission charge for the show. No reservations are necessary.

Proceeds from the Antiques Show will benefit the Repertory Theater of St. Louis. Thirty-six dealers from throughout the country will bring their finest wares to St. Louis for the three-day event, which will be open from 10:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday and from 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

Antiques will be displayed in a room-like enclosures, complete with appropriate wallpaper, paint and bouquets of fresh flowers by florist Ralph Allen.

$3 million Army contract to help blind workers

The U.S. Army Troop Support Command has awarded a $3 million contract to the St. Louis Lighthouse for the Blind for assembly and packaging of a camouflage support system.

Work on the two-year contract will be performed in Olivette, said Ken Connolly, TROSCOM contracting officer.
Connolly said the Army expects to save $100,000 a year through the contract. Previously, camouflage support system assembly and packaging had been performed in Army depots at Red River, Texas, and New Cumberland, Pa.

William D. Telford, vice president for government operations, National Industries for the Blind, said the contract "is a classic case of how a federal agency working together with National Industries for the Blind can develop a service or commodity for a blind workshop which meets the highest standards required by the government."
"In the truest sense of the word, it was a joint effort — one which will create a number of jobs for blind persons in the St. Louis area," Telford said.

Connolly said NIB is expected to hire 20 employees to perform the work.
The contract was developed under auspices of the Jewish-Wagner Day Program, which for 50 years has been dedicated to providing employment opportunities for blind people through government procurement.

Sports Days winners announced

Winners have been announced from last week's Barbara Kerch Elementary Sports Days held at Maryville School.

This year's chairperson were Clabbe Briggs of Mitchell School and Pat Maxey of Niedringhaus School. They said this year's competition was a great success. Six new Sports Days records were set and two were tied. Some of the records had stood for as many as 11 years.

Boys records broken included Ron Fisher of Mitchell School, who had a long jump of 8-3; and Mike Wielgus of Niedringhaus, who ran the 50-yard dash in 6.8 seconds. Girls records broken included Cindy King of Mitchell, who had a shuttle run time of 9.2; Danielle Hightower of Prather, who had a shuttle run time of 9.0 and ran the 50-yard dash in 6.6; and Paula Heffer of Niedringhaus, who ran the 50-yard dash in 6.4.

The boys record tied was by Matt Gauen of Niedringhaus with a time of 6.8 in the 50-yard dash. The girls record tied was by Dawn Cooley of Prather, who had a long jump of 6-8. Congratulations go to all participants, particularly to the winners and record-breakers. Special recognition should also go to those elementary physical education teachers for teaching and training the students in the skills and teaching them sportsmanship.

CELEBRATE THE BIG SWITCH TO CHEVY TRUCK WITH $500 CASH BACK.

America's switching to tough Chevy trucks in a big way. Latest proof of Chevy's rocketing success:

Right now, sales of the advanced full-size Chevy pickup are growing at a faster rate than Ford F-Series pickup sales. And while Ford Ranger sales are dropping off, Chevy S-10 pickup sales are up. And the versatile Chevy S-10 Blazer continues to be America's most popular sport utility vehicle. Come see why America's picking Chevy over Ford. And right now, we're fueling our success with big savings on Chevy trucks with option Saver Pacs. Plus $500* cash back.

CHEVY S-10 BLAZER
SAVE $1,600[†]
on Chevy S-10 Blazer with Tahoe Saver Pac.
